Amigos of the Ghost Apache
Re: Outdoor Season

Ghost apache offers a world-class opportunity to enjoy the big bucks of south Texas. Few habitats offer the abundance of wild game that can only be found in the brush of south Texas.

You will definitely know you are “in the bush” once you arrive in this wild semi-desert brush country that looks like parts of Africa. Big deer thrive on high protein brush native to an area known as the Golden Triangle. This area is famous for the quality and quantity of record book whitetail produced in North America.

If you would like to experience a unique adventure, Ghost Apache consists of over 9,000 acres of high fence including 4 miles of Nueces River frontage bottomland.

Ghost Apache is unique even in south Texas with a majority of the ranch consisting of old native brush and considered unimproved in cattle production terminology. The native brush provides a diverse high protein diet exceeding 20% in winter and summer seasons. This native year round high protein forage is the reason that south Texas is famous for producing big antlered deer.

We hope that you can schedule a visit to this unique part of North America and have enclosed the details and price list.
